Dark Skies Protection and Development

Sarah McDowell

INTRO & BACKGROUND... Much of Pima and Cochise County have designated dark skies areas that are protected and used for scientific research, amateur astronomy, star gazing, and astrophotography. SCC is an ideal location for astro development; research, amateur astrophotography, observation, and star gazing tourism. To protect existing astronomy assets it is important to have the surrounding areas designated as dark skies areas and avoid light pollution in the regions near these dark skies locations. Several sites that can be developed within dark skies areas include international telescope parks, dark skies campgrounds for stargazing, and telescope parks for local astronomy associations and local schools.

KEY POINTS (WHAT IS IT)

- Designate parts of Santa Cruz County as dark skies areas to protect valuable assets from light pollution.
- Designate observation areas where visitors can camp, set up telescopes and star gaze

COLLABORATORS

- F. L. Whipple Observatory
- Winer Observatory
- Tucson Amateur Astronomy Association (TAAA)
- Huachuca Astronomy Club (HAC)

CASE STUDIES

DARK SKY, NM

Dark Sky New Mexico is an internationally recognized remote telescope hosting facility for serious astrophotographers, universities, and astronomers.

CHIRICAHUA ASTRONOMY COMPLEX, AZ

CAC is the dark skies complex owned by TAAA. It is used by members, host star parties, and is utilized by the local school district.

ROLE OF COUNTY

Unique Offerings

CONNECTION TO V & P PLAN

- Create an overall brand, retain existing business and industry, and attract new business

GRANT(S)

- The Uwingu Fund
- Light Monitor Grant Program

TAKING IT FURTHER

- International telescope park could bring SCC to the global stage for private and public astronomers
- Connect the public school system with astronomy facilities and the UofA to give students a unique opportunity to learn
- Host star parties for community members and public schools

IMPACT & METRICS

The American Southwest is highly desirable for astronomy activity, it is world-renowned for clear skies and low light pollution. The region already has several observatories, some of which are closed to the public. By connecting these resources with more public sites SCC could offer something regionally unique for locals, tourists, and their public educational institutes. This is a growing market, SCC could enter before other areas become better established.
